Paris, Sept. 17, N. S. Letters from Caſtiglion del Stivere of the 5th Inſtant adviſe, that on the 3d the Marſhal de Noailles went to the King of Sardinia at Bardolano, to give him an Account of the Orders he had judged neceſſary to iſſue for the Troops of the Allies to advance to the Adige, and poſſeſs themſelves of ſeveral Poſts on that River. The Imperialiſts in Tyrol ſeeming by their Preparations and Motions to deſign to march back into Italy, as ſoon as Count Koniglegg ſhall return from Vienna, the King of Sardinia and the Marſhal de Noailles had determined to be near at Hand to oppoſe that Deſign; accordingly moſt of the Troops of the Allies held themſelves in Readineſs to march, and thoſe which were cantoned at the greateſt Diſtance were to receive their Orders on the 6th; in the mean time the Marqueſs de Maillebois, with the Body he commands, marched actually on the 5th, was to reach Maringo the next Day, and from thence was to advance with ſeveral Detachments that were to join him in his March to Guſſolingo, while other Forces ſecured divers Poſts which the Enemy might otherwiſe ſeize. The Armies on the Rhine have not yet put themſelves in Motion on either Side for any Enterprize of Conſequence.
